Coollest Projects is run by CoderDojo volunteers to inspire young people to be innovative in technology. The format is inclusive (all you need is an idea), fun and rewarding. This year it also went global, inviting Dojos from around the world to submit projects. Where possible, flights and accommodation were offered for overseas kids who could not afford to participate.

Coollest Projects is an example of a group of volunteers not just training a new generation in technology, but encouraging them to change the world and have big ideas that will do just that.

Note: CoderDojo is already a project. This is an extension of this project.
