- Education
- Data

Research shows that data is critical in school improvement planning, implementation, and evaluation. But data alone isn't enough. The combination of Kickboard's intuitive software platform and tailored coaching services equips educators to ask the right questions first.

Kickboard works side-by-side with schools. Together they identify practical ways to include ongoing data analysis and action planning into existing school systems and routines. This happens until these habits become second nature.

Kickboard also works with teachers and parents so that everybody working with children can understand the data relevant to their education.
